Articles of Impeachment Will Go to Senate Today

FERGUSON TRIAL TO SUDDEN END

EXECUTIVE TO LEAVE OFFICE AUTOMATICALLY PENDING SENATE'S DISPOSAL.

By the Associated Press.
Austin, Aug. 23.—By a vote of 82 to 51 the Texas house of representatives tonight voted to present to the senate articles of impeachment against Governor Ferguson.

Representative William Fly, who acted as chairman of the house committee of the whole that investigated the thirteen charges preferred against the governor by Speaker F. O. Fuller, tonight is forming a committee of nine that will draw up the articles of impeachment.

This committee report he will present to the house as its first business tomorrow morning. The articles as drawn by the committee must first be passed on by the house before they can go to the senate, but in view of tonight's vote they will be adopted with little or no alteration, say leaders.

In the meantime Governor Ferguson remains in office. Whenever the bill of impeachment is signed and presented to the senate, however, he will be automatically suspended, and his place will be taken by Lieutenant Governor Hobby, who has already resigned from the federal loan bank at Houston so that he may take office.

The fight to return a bill of impeachment against Governor Ferguson reached a speedier end than was anticipated. Almost all of today was spent in arguments by opposing counsel. When at 5:10 p. m. M. M. Crane, counsel for the house, finished the concluding argument, Representative William Bledsoe of Lubbock was on his feet with a resolution that the committee of the whole report back to the house, recommending the preferment of impeachment charges. Friends of the governor were not slow to act.

Floor Fight Follows.

Representative Tillotson of Austin followed with a substituted resolution providing for the consideration of each of the thirteen charges separately, with a vote at the end, the committee then to report back its findings. Mr. Bledsoe came back with a motion to table the substitute. Parliamentary discussion ensued, but when the question was put the motion won out by a vote of 69 to 65. A motion to order the previous question was then put. More discussion resulted, but Chairman William Fly held that under the rules there could be no debate and on the call the motion carried 70 to 44.

The Bledsoe resolution was then put to the ayes and noes. By this time several who had voted with the governor on the previous motion saw that his opponents were standing firm and switched their standing. The vote showed 81 for and 52 against, reporting a recommendation for impeachment.

To Draw Up Formalities.
The resolution, which also provided that William Fly, chairman of the committee, should form a board of managers to draw up impeachment charges automatically dissolved the investigation.

Under a call of the house by Representative Dudley of El Paso, the doors were locked and the house voted on adoption of the report. By this time those against the governor had pulled 82 votes. The noes totaled 51. The house then adjourned until morning.

COUNCIL ADOPTS 'COMFORT' PLAN

ORDERS STATIONS IN BUSINESS DISTRICT FOLLOWING NEWS EDITORIAL THURSDAY.

Following an editorial in the News Thursday morning advocating establishment of comfort stations in the business district the city commission, without a dissenting vote Thursday granted a request of W. B. Kelsey for such comfort stations to be built in the business section for convenience especially of the soldiers who will be located here at Camp MacArthur.

The matter was referred to Health Commissioner Bryant Allen with power to act, and Commissioner Allen took the matter up the moment that the city commission ended. In company with Mr. Kelsey, who is here to provide comforts and amusements for Uncle Sam's boys, Commissioner Allen looked over the city Thursday afternoon for suitable locations for the structures, which probably will be stucco construction. It will be necessary to build a number of these comfort stations.

L. P. BAIN DEAD IN AUTO WRECK

REV. GRONER OF COLUMBUS ST. BAPTIST CHURCH ALSO BADLY INJURED.

OTHER WACOANS IN SMASH MACHINE JUMPS EMBANKMENT TWO MILES FROM ROUND ROCK, TEXAS.

Special to the News.
Round Rock, Texas, Aug. 23.—L. P. Bain, 1007 North Fourteenth street, Waco, was almost instantly killed, his wife seriously injured, and Rev. F. S. Groner, pastor Columbus Street Baptist church, Waco, and Mrs. Howard Haygood painfully bruised, in an automobile accident shortly before 3:30 o'clock this afternoon on the Georgetown-Austin road, two miles from here.

W. J. Upchurch of Leander, passing shortly after the accident, took Mrs. Bain to Round Rock for medical attention and later brought in the body of her husband.

According to accounts brought here of the fatality, Rev. Groner was driving the machine at better than average speed when he suddenly lost control by reason of a broken steering gear. The machine is said to have plunged over a high embankment, making two complete turns before it ditched itself at the side of the road.

Neither Rev. Groner or Mrs. Haygood's injuries are serious. Mrs. Bain's hip and leg were broken, according to first examinations. The extent of her injuries, however, are not believed sufficient to result fatally.

L. P. Bain was 23 years old, had offices with the Dixie Motor company of this city, and until recently was employed by that firm. He conducted the local business of the Southwestern company and sold jewelry through agents who traveled over sections near Waco. For some time he was in the office of John F. Rowe. Mrs. Haygood is a close friend of the Groner family and has been making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Groner recently.

Rev. F. S. Groner, pastor of the Columbus Street Baptist church, had but recently returned from Asheville, N. C., where Mrs. Groner is at present visiting friends and relatives. The Groner children are with a sister of Rev. Groner in New Orleans. At 10 o'clock Thursday morning Rev. Groner, Mr. and Mrs. Bain and Mrs. Haygood left Waco for Austin, intending to return to Waco Friday morning.

On receipt of the news of the accident in Waco Dr. M. D. Baker and D. P. Wallace left for Round Rock.

Copenhagen, Aug. 23.—German casualty lists no longer are permitted to leave Germany.

ITALIANS FURTHER ADVANCE
On both the northern and southern ends of the battle lines in the Austro-Italian theater, the Italians have pressed forward their lines for considerable new gains against the Austrians. The counter attacks of the Austrians are of the most extreme violence, but nowhere have they been able to dislodge the Italians.

More than 16,000 prisoners already have been taken by the Italians.
"Of First Magnitude"
The chief military observer, Major General Maurice says the Italians already have gained an important victory which gives promise of developing presently into a first magnitude.

In Rumania the Russo-Rumanian troops have taken the offensive in several sectors.

Washington Alarmed at Russ Strife

By the Associated Press.
Washington, Aug. 23.—Russia's critical internal situation aggravated by the new German drive against Riga, threatening the capital, is watched by officials here with much concern. It became known today that official advices are closely in accord with press dispatches describing grave political conditions.

The outcome of the extraordinary national council to be held at Moscow is awaited here with keenest interest. The immediate fate of Russia, it is felt, depends on it, either in the formation of a strong centralized government, capable of rapidly organizing the army and resuming the offensive against the central powers or the alternative—open civil strife.

FIRE SYSTEM TO RIVAL WACO'S

There is to be a fire protection system at Camp MacArthur that will rival that of the city of Waco.
Two great tanks of 100,000 gallons capacity each are to be constructed adjoining the city water works reservoir on the hill next to the Bosqueville road. Work has been started on the first of these tanks.
The tanks are to be constructed on framework that will stand 65 feet in the air. This will give a water pressure that will provide for all requirements without the aid of engines.

3:00 A. M. BULLETINS

Houston, Texas, Aug. 23.—(3 a. m.)—Breaking from under control of their commanding officers at about 9 o'clock Thursday night eighty negroes from the Twenty-fourth U. S. infantry, stationed at Camp Logan for guard duty, marched down Washington avenue, toward the center of the city, shooting out lights in the houses along the way and leaving dead and injured behind them.

Persons living in the vicinity of the negro camp say that the first shooting took place within its boundaries. Officer B. L. Gentry of the Houston police force said that he was at the end of the west end car line when the first shot was fired and that the trouble originated within the negro camp.

Marching down Washington avenue, until they came to Sandman road, running south, the troopers turned and started toward the San Felipe road. At the corner of Washington and Sandman the first murder was committed as far as facts were obtainable Thursday night. Alma Reichart, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Reichart, who conducts a small store at that point, was outside when she saw the soldiers coming and heard the firing.

She ran inside the store and a minute afterward dropped with a bullet in her stomach fired through the double wall of the building.

At 4910 Lillian street one man was killed and another had his right arm shot almost off. When the frightened family in the house was assured that no harm was done, rescue parties reached the place, the light was turned on just inside the door. Mrs. C. Winkler stepped to the door, then fell back crying:
"Oh, my God, there's Freddie, and he is dead."

Her son lay on the porch with a bullet through his right breast. W. J. Druch, a half brother to Freddie Winkler, lay on a bed in the front room of the house bleeding to death from a wound in the right arm.

At 4903 Washington avenue Manuel Garreda, a Mexican employed at Camp Logan, was shot as he lay on his bed under a shed in the back yard and killed. Houston policemen, armed civilians, and members of the Texas National Guard, as well as guardsmen from Illinois who were in town when the trouble started, quickly went to the scene of the shooting and collected at Boulevard avenue, Houston Heights, while Capt. W. E. Rothrock, constructing quartermaster at Camp Logan, assumed command.

An angry cry of "Lynch them!" and "Come, let's kill 'em," were heard on all sides. Captain Rothrock placed an armed guard across Washington avenue with instructions to let no one pass. Then he climbed upon the hood of an automobile and appealed to the men to listen to reason.

"I know how you feel," he said, "but to go out there blindly, if the negroes are still fighting, would mean certain death. I ask you men to control yourselves and rest assured that the United States army will see to it that every man is dealt as he deserves."

Under Captain Rothrock's appeal the men listened to reason and obeyed orders as they were given to them and the soldiers.

The tension of the crowd was shown when a negro soldier, who had been in Houston all evening, and had had nothing to do with the trouble, stepped off a street car.
Two civilians armed with shotguns followed him half a block as he went toward the camp and forced him to surrender. A crowd quickly collected, bent upon vengeance, and but for the presence of several members of the Texas National

ILLINOIS OFFICER FALLS UNDER FIRE OF FIRST VOLLEY

White Women and Children Among Victims of Bullets Fired from Guns of Negro Troopers Who Start Bloody Race Riot After Two of Their Comrades are Arrested by Houston Police.

By the Associated Press.

Houston, Aug. 23.—Twelve white men, civilians, police officers and national guardsmen, were killed and more than a score of persons, men, women and children, were wounded in an outbreak here tonight of negro soldiers in the Twenty-fourth United States infantry stationed here to act as guards during the construction of Camp Logan, at which the Illinois National Guard will train. It is not known how many negroes are dead.

Capt. J. W. Mattes, Battery A, Second Illinois field artillery, was among the dead, he being killed in trying to remonstrate with the negro soldiers who were running rampant, firing their guns.

The outbreak is supposed to have originated in a difficulty which two negro soldiers had with police officers, who arrested them for disturbing the peace and sent them to the police station early in the afternoon. The firing began when an ambulance started through the section occupied by the negro soldiers. They stopped the ambulance and firing a volley, riddled it. It was this volley that wounded a 16-year-old white girl standing in her father's door.

Police reserves were sent out and were met by volleys from the negroes. Civilians went to the assistance of the police officers and firing continued for an hour and a half. It is believed that several bodies will be found in the prairie around the negro soldiers' camp in the morning.

There were several hundred Texas guardsmen here ready to enter for training camps, but they had no guns. A battery of the Coast artillery was rushed to Houston in motor trucks and the situation at 1 a. m. was quiet.

The city was placed under martial law late tonight by proclamation of Governor Ferguson.

One report reached police headquarters and stated that about one-third of the riotous negroes were under restraint and that the balance had divided into small groups and were making their way to different parts of the city.

The names of all the dead are not yet available and the casualties may far exceed those given.

The dead are:
CAPT. J. W. MATTES, Battery A, Second Illinois Field artillery.
MOUNTED POLICE OFFICER IRA D. RANEY.
MOUNTED POLICE OFFICER BRUCE DANIELS.
SATTON, a barger.
EARL FINLEY.
A. R. CARSTEM.
FRED E. WINKLER.
AN UNIDENTIFIED MEXICAN.
POLICE OFFICER HENRY J. MEINKE.
THREE UNIDENTIFIED WHITE MEN.
Among the injured are:

C. W. White, civil engineer, shot in right thigh.
C. W. Butcher, shot in left shoulder and back.
W. A. Thompson, shot through right hip.
Wily Strong, negro soldier, Twenty-fourth infantry, wounded.
City Detective P. A. Benford, shot in the knee.
Police Officer Ruf Daniels, shot in back.
Thelme Reichart, white girl, shot in stomach.
Unidentified white girl, condition critical.
O. J. Chapener, street car motorman, shot through stomach.
Unidentified white man, wounded in thigh and arm.

The Houston Undertaking company's ambulance was badly shot up, according to a report which reached the downtown district at 9:45. It was reported that all the tires had been shot off and holes had been shot through the body of the machine. None of the men attached to the ambulance was wounded, however.

Guard would have killed the trooper where he stood.
He was placed in a nearby auto and hurried to town for safe keeping.
At 11 o'clock sixteen truck loads of national guardsmen were rushed to the scene of the trouble, and all the streets were put under heavy guard.
A member of the guard from the camp said after the shooting that he had known it was coming.
Members of negro troops who were placed on guard duty at the camp have for two or three days been insulting the white soldiers. Although the trouble did not start between negroes and white troops, the action of the former in their remarks to the white men showed their frame of mind.
Early Friday morning it was reported that about seventy-five of the negro troopers who left camp were still to be found.
"The trouble started at the camp about 7:30 Thursday night," said Major K. F. Snow, who is in command of the negro troops used as guards at the camp.
"I saw the feeling that had arisen over the treatment the men said some of them had received at the hands of the police, and they were hard to control. I soon learned they had entered the tent where the ammunition was kept and a large number of rounds had been secured before I learned what was happening. I did all I could to stop the men, but they were beyond control and some 150 of them started to shoot promiscuously in the camp and soon scattered in every direction."

ALLEN OPPOSES WOMAN OFFICER

CITY COMMISSIONER IN TILT WITH DELEGATION SEEKING POLICE MATRON.

With Commissioner Bryant Allen strenuously opposing all efforts on the part of a delegation of women before city council yesterday morning asking that several women police be added to the Waco force in the near future, the city council, after a long session, finally adopted, naming Mrs. M. B. Scarborough, at present engaged in women's aid work at the Cotton Belt depot, as Waco's new police matron.

Allen told the delegation he did not believe in their proposal; that he had been reared with the idea that it is best for women not to be placed in such positions; and that no good or practical results would follow if the matron should be appointed. Further, he declared, the "city of Waco was not a charitable institution and such an appointment would be kind of a charity."

Women Address Allen
"As God has seen fit to give to women the power to produce life, surely He has made it her duty and privilege to protect it," came back Mrs. W. E. Spell.

After her came Mrs. Romans declaring a number of women had aided Allen in his campaign, that he had asked for a chance to make good in his position and now that the women "wanted a chance to make good in helping their sisters" he was denying them the opportunity.

"It isn't fair to put the matter in that way. This question should be settled on its merits," came back the commissioner.

"Well, we're fighting fire with fire," retorted Mrs. Romans.

Commissioner Allen again attempted to block the plan when the name of Mrs. Scarborough was presented for confirmation as police matron, declaring she was not a taxpayer of Waco and that "he did not believe in the proposition anyway."

Mayor Breaks Tie

The vote to establish a police matron was tied. Commissioners Richards and Stamp voting yes, Harlow and Allen, no. The mayor's vote favored the proposition. A request for an advisory committee of five women to work without pay was refused by the council.

Finance commissioner Harlow in voicing his opposition to the plan for a police matron declared he did not think it a practical one and that the city already had more propositions than it could finance.

Be Careful in Using Soap on Your Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulitised coconut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soap or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

28 MORE STORE HOUSES ORDERED

DAY BY DAY CAMP MACARTHUR GROWS UNDER NEW WAR ORDERS.

Camp MacArthur is getting larger every day.

The reservation is growing by reason of the work being done by the F. A. Jones Construction company.

It also is growing by reason of additional construction being ordered continuously by the war department.

Yesterday the Jones company, through Major Hansen, constructing quartermaster for the government, received orders to build 28 more storehouses at Camp MacArthur.

These storehouses will be 20x38 feet in dimension and will be scattered over the entire camp. Two are to be constructed in each of twenty-four regiments.

For Food and Supplies.

These buildings will be used for the storage of food, equipment and supplies of various kinds. In putting two in each regiment the work of distribution of supplies will be greatly simplified.

Orders also have been received for the construction of quarters for an additional squadron of cavalry. It has not been announced what cavalry is to occupy this section but this does not surprise the constructing generals, as they are daily getting orders for additional construction.

Forty-four infirmaries are now being constructed. These are 80x120 feet in dimension. One is to be built in each regiment and they are of permanent construction.

Fifty Lumber Cars Come.

Fifty cars of lumber were received at Camp MacArthur yesterday and more are in transit. These are being unloaded right on the reservation, the Cotton Belt line having constructed sufficient sidings to handle the big amount of tonnage received daily for the government. Three side tracks now have been completed through the camp of the Twenty-fourth U. S. infantry and four more are being constructed. These will be completed within the next few days.

The ten large warehouses in the quartermaster's section are completed and are rapidly being filled with supplies.

Great quantities of hay and grain are being unloaded on the reservation and other supplies of all natures are coming in daily.

When the main body of troops arrives Camp MacArthur will be well equipped to handle them.

THINKS SWIMMING AND BOATING ARE NEEDED FOR WACO

Manager R. E. Fellow of the Hotel Raleigh is strong of the opinion that Waco needs, and needs badly, a water park or amusement park where water would form one of the chief attractions. Regarding this he said Thursday:

"With the Brazos river at our doors, with the possibility of diverting its flow as needed, we ought to be able to secure a place where boating and swimming can be enjoyed, thus bringing in the thousands of people. I am told that hundreds of Dallas people daily visit the big lake near Fort Worth, and Waco is badly in need of a park which will offer swimming and boating amusement. Surely we ought to be able to work this out, and therefore let our practical thinkers get busy and evolve something which will meet the situation and which will be within our reach."

Perhaps It's Here

E. M. Brink, age 22, who lives at 912 South Twentieth street, was thrown from a bicycle at the railroad crossing on South Sixth street and badly bruised about the head and wrist.

Ida Marena, a Mexican woman, was before the justice court of Justice Padgett yesterday for disturbing the peace. The trial continued through the day.

The Praetorians are going to hold a special session at the Knights of Columbus hall tonight at 8 o'clock in honor of their members who are going to the training camp.

NO FILLING STATION FOR TWELFTH AND COLUMBUS

An effort to establish a gasoline drive-in filling station at Twelfth and Columbus streets was estopped Thursday by a ban from the city commission. One of the big oil companies sought to establish a station on the northeast corner, with the consent of the owner of the property, but near-by property owners objected, and the request was not granted.

CITY COMMISSION INVITED TO AID LABOR DAY PLANS

The commissioners were invited, with the mayor, to take part in the parade and four police officers were asked for, to lead the parade and clear the way. Three officers also were asked for in the grand stand. These requests for officers were referred to Police Chief Guy McNamara.

SPOT QUOTATIONS FOR WACO FROM EXCHANGE

The Waco Cotton Exchange announces that beginning with today a spot quotation committee will make public daily reports on Waco cotton. ## ENFIELD RIFLES FOR EFFICIENCY

CAPTAIN ANDREWS OF CAMP MACARTHUR TELLS REASONS FOR ITS ADOPTION.

The United States plans to equip American troops with Enfield rifles, according to word from Washington. A number of years ago the "Craig" was the rifle used but this was later substituted by the Springfield. This has proved one of the finest rifles used by any army in the world and since being adopted by the War Department has been used by all regular army units and guard troops.

The reason for substituting the Enfield is one of efficiency on the battle line, it being impracticable to have different makes of rifles used by different troops of the allied forces.

Andrews Explains Change

"For instance said Captain Andrews commander at Camp MacArthur "if Canadians, French and Americans were fighting in the same first line trenches and a different ammunition was necessary for each outfit, it would make the problem of supplying ammunition a difficult one. If all troops are using the same ammunition the matter is simple."

The rifles of the United States army can be used it is stated by having them re-chambered so that Enfield ammunition can be used. Likewise the Enfield rifle can be re-chambered to allow of the use of ammunition designed for the Springfield in this country. The troops now carry Springfields in this new training work and the regu-

NEW COLUMBIA RECORDS.

Lovers of symphonic music will be interested in a Columbia patriotic record de luxe of the "Star Spangled Banner," by one of the largest symphonic ensembles in the world—the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Mr. Stock, the renowned conductor of this remarkable musical organization, is responsible for the arrangement, which is perhaps the most brilliant conception of the "Star Spangled Banner" ever played by a symphony orchestra.

There is a moving grandeur in the familiar strains that proclaim each individual player a patriot, inspired by the "spirit of the hour."

If we could look into the hearts of Uncle Sam's boys abroad, we would see just such a love-hallowed picture of home as is conveyed by Oscar Seagle's recording of "The Dear Old Home Land," just released by the Columbia.

The resonant voice of America's great baritone is warm with sympathy and understanding, while the melody, of dreamy tempo and appealing sweetness, gives him a splendid opportunity to display the wide vocal range for which he is renowned.

Little Stories for Bedtime

Peter Calms Big Tom.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Then Peter Rabbit told Big Tom Gobbler, who with Mrs. Gobbler had just come to the Green Forest, about Old Man Coyote and how smart he is. Big Tom at once began to be very nervous. He acted as if he expected to see Old Man Coyote spring out from behind a tree any minute and he at once expressed a doubt about the wisdom of staying in such a neighborhood. Right away Peter saw that he had made a mistake in speaking so strongly about Old Man Coyote. He had done it with the best intentions in the world. He had done it to put Big Tom on guard. Now it looked as if Big Tom might leave and this was the very last thing Peter wanted to happen.

"If you aren't afraid of Granny and Reddy Fox I don't think you need to fear Old Man Coyote," Peter hastened to say. "Of course, he is a little bigger and stronger, but any one who can keep out of the clutches of Granny and Reddy Fox ought to be able to ought to be, but until I have become better acquainted here I cannot feel easy. Foxes I know all about and they don't worry me. I've been hunted by them all my life, but here I am, and somewhere about here I am, Gobbler. I must find her and tell her about Old Man Coyote. I don't know about trying to bring up a family with so many dangers about. Are there any of those two-legged creatures with terrible guns?"

Peter hesitated. He was afraid that if he said yes that this would settle the matter and that Big Tom would decide to move on somewhere else. Then a happy thought came to him. He knew that hunters with terrible guns no longer hunted in this part of the Green Forest or on the Green Meadows because of Farmer Brown's boy who had posted signs and who always warned hunters away. He didn't know what the signs meant of course, but he did know that during the last hunting season the hunters had kept away although they had hunted and hunted on all the land around Farmer Brown's. So he hastened to explain.

"As long as you stay here you are perfectly safe from hunters with terrible guns," said he, "but anywhere else you will be in danger from them in the fall. They used to come here, but they don't any more. Farmer Brown's boy won't let them."

"Who is Farmer Brown's boy?" demanded Big Tom suspiciously.

Peter told him. "He is the best friend we've got," he ended.

Big Tom watched his head thoughtfully. "That sounds a good deal like the very one who opened the box and let Mrs. Gobbler and me free," said he. "If that is the case I guess we'll stay. Old Man Coyote may be dangerous, but hunters with terrible guns are worse. I was hunted so often down where I came from that it is a wonder that I am alive today. I've been told that I used to have relatives all through here, but that there hasn't been one up here for years and years simply because they were killed, every last one of them, by hunters with terrible guns. You are sure they don't come here any more?"

"Absolutely sure," replied Peter.

Just then there was a rustle in the bushes and out stepped Mrs. Gobbler. "Who are you talking with, my dear?" said she to Big Tom.

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Aurora, Ill.—"For seven long months I suffered from a female trouble, with severe pains in my back and sides until I became so weak I could hardly walk from chair to chair, and got so nervous I would jump at the slightest noise. I was entirely unfit to do my household work. I was giving up hope of ever being well, when my sister asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took six bottles and today I am a healthy woman able to do my own household work. I wish every suffering woman would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and find out for themselves how good it is."—Mrs. CARL A. KIESO, 596 North Ave., Aurora, Ill.

The great number of unsolicited testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratories, many of which are from time to time published by permission, are proof of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, in the treatment of female ills. Every ailing woman in the United States is cordially invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. ### FOR LIEUTENANT L. W. ROGERS.

Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Weatherby were at home Monday night in honor of Mrs. Weatherby's brother, Lieut. L. W. Rogers, to a few of his special friends. The victrola and piano were in constant use throughout the evening. Mr. Charles Daniels played and sang and Miss Bess Roberts sang. An amusing contest was one in which each guest tried to write an acrostic using the letters of the words Uncle Sam with which to begin each word of a message to President Wilson telling his view of the war, or what he was willing to do for his country. Miss Bernice Harper was the most successful, and was awarded a small statue of Uncle Sam as trophy of her skill. Miss Catherine Wood then gave several readings, which were keenly appreciated. In another contest, each girl tried to make a list of all the things contained in the forty-eight pounds of luggage carried by a soldier on a hike. No one was successful in naming the whole kit. The guests were invited into the dining

AS TO THE POPE'S PEACE PROPOSAL.

IF AND WHEN President Wilson replies to Pope Benedict's peace proposal he probably will write a personal letter to him. It will be an official letter from a citizen of the United States to another private person.

The president will write to Pope Benedict exactly as if he were writing to the Episcopal bishop of Massachusetts, a Methodist bishop, a moderator of a Presbyterian assembly or a distinguished clergyman in any foreign country.

The pope does not communicate with the United States government through the secretary of state or any other diplomatic channel—because the vatican is not recognized by the United States government as a sovereign power.

To the American government, the pope is the spiritual leader of millions of Christians. We maintain no diplomatic representative at the vatican and the papal legate in the United States is not a member of the diplomatic corps.

It is only with Austria that the vatican today maintains full diplomatic relations.

When the pope speaks as the head of the church in his encyclicals addressed to the church or to mankind in general he is speaking in another capacity—as the spiritual father of his church and an adherent and expounder of the teachings of Christ.

Austria and the Hapsburg dynasty maintain about the same relations today that existed when the pope and the emperor of the Germanic "Holy Roman Empire" signed by Charles V. the joint declaration of Christendom. The Hapsburgs once swayed the scepter with the consent and blessing of the pope, and in theory the relations never have been changed.

Other nations maintain modified diplomatic relations with the pope. Both Germany and Great Britain transact business with the Holy See through diplomatic agents. Both these empires have many millions of subjects who owe spiritual allegiance to the Holy Father.

Spain and some of the South American republics also maintain diplomatic relations with the vatican, although the extent of their relations has been increasingly limited in recent years.

France, Italy and Portugal, although the vast bulk of their people are spiritual children of the pope, do not maintain any diplomatic relations with the vatican and do not recognize any sovereign power as residing in the pope.

Under the czars, Russia recognized the pope in a diplomatic way, for the transaction of temporal business, although the czar himself was a rival religious potentate and the spiritual head of that branch of the Christian church which practices the eastern or Greek rites, as distinguished from the Roman.

To the czar the pope was only the bishop of Rome in a religious sense, but to the czar's polish subjects the pope was the head of the church.

The Russian republic has of course dissolved all of these complicated relations.

TICKLING THE KEYS.

OUR next-door neighbor has bought his daughter Maggie a grand piano. It's a magnificent instrument. But Maggie, alas! is not musical.

The poor girl tries hard. For hours at a stretch she practices weird scales and chords. But she gets nowhere.

No, we don't mind the noise. What concerns us is not so much Maggie and her din as the unfortunate piano.

What a fate! Here is a superb mechanism of a thousand adjustments, all meeting with delicate exactitude in a single purpose, the expression of musical ideas. What possibilities lurk in that piano's soul! Fettered within it are the grandeur of Beethoven. A pressure on this key and that would summon the business, awakening to life the symphony that sleeps. Yet just the right combination of keys is never struck; Maggie's piano seems doomed to incoherent discords.

Yet, tho we pity the piano, we feel it is even more to blame than Maggie. Maggie tries; the piano puts forth nary an effort.

Say, we made that next-door neighbor stuff up. Maggie isn't a girl at all; she's aspiration. The piano isn't a piano at all; it's you, the old routine you, in whom, for all your every-dayness, there drowns a symphony of achievement.

Aspiration is trying hard to tickle your keys. Don't be a piano and refuse to help.

"EARS, YET YE HEAR NOT!"

A GREENSBURG, PA., man claimed exemption from the national army on these grounds:

"My sense of hearing is so acute I fear heavy cannonading would impair it, if not cause total deafness."

War does deafen. It has not yet deafened Americans. Yet some have ears and hear not—hear not the warning of this war.

Cannonading in America would be louder and would deafen more Americans than cannonading in Europe. And those with ears so acute as to hear the far-reverberating sound of the guns on the battlefields of France have also hearing delicate enough to sense the lesson that in the contest with Germany one American serving now in France is better than ten Americans serving a few years from now on new battlefields on American soil, in defense of their very hearthstones.

And—war does more than deafen. It destroys—sometimes all. It is far better that some of us be stunned temporarily by going to the scene of the cannonading, while all the rest of us work like Trojans at home to supplement their efforts, than that all of us be not only stunned but scarred and crippled and crushed by a more deadly and costly struggle in our own front yard.

FUTILITY.

HE talked perhaps a hundred hours, perhaps 200. Every one lost count. He drowned his heaves in a sea of heated words. He thundered at their ears with invective against Herbert C. Hoover. He tore passion to tatters in denouncing the man in the white house.

And then Jim Reed, senator from Missouri, had the deep humiliation of receiving only six votes to support him in his onslaught upon the bill to give the president adequate control of the food situation.

THE CONFESSION OF A VAGABOND.

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

I have, said the professor, a deep-seated horror of institutions. Machinery is interesting, but I do not want to be a cog in it.

I have had some good dinners with Dr. Scribner's family in the insane asylum, and pleasant evenings at bridge, and the charming hostess knew how to make any kind of a place homelike. So when a member of the board I used to visit the state prison; the warden's company was genial, and his beds good. Likewise I have seen the velvet side of colleges and hospitals.

But it's no use. I don't like the smell. What is that peculiar odor anyway that characterizes any office building? You find it in postoffices, court houses, barracks, and all official hives. Is it the odor of authority?

And then I hate rules. I never could keep one. Any kind of a regulation arouses in me a desire to break it. I suppose rules are good things, necessary and all that; we couldn't do without them. Outwardly I praise them. Inwardly I defeat them.

And an institution is an organism where the human will is abstracted, generalized, codified, ascriptized, converted into mechanic efficiency and contains cells for souls.

All the luxuries of a club cannot compensate for the prohibitions that make a club possible.

I would rather live in a log hut in the woods, cook my own bacon and flapjacks, and throw things on the floor when I please, than dwell in the apartment de luxe of the most magnificent hotel in creation and have to keep all the regulations posted up by the door.

Still, I'm not what you'd call a criminal; I don't want to get drunk, steal any one's watch, commit assault and battery, or appropriate any other gentleman's lady friend. I am, as Bill Nye said of himself, peaceable, friendly, and pleasant to be thrown among.

The reason why I like home is because it is the one place I can be an anarchist and be comfortable, the one place where I can eat on the floor or take off my shoes in the parlor if I feel disposed, and nobody cares. People talk of the restrictions of family life. Mercy! My family is the one oasis in life where I am not restricted. There I roam as a primeval animal—tame, of course—but my keeper is kind and disposed to let me alone, except, of course, sometimes.

I am a born Anglo-Saxon, and my soul loves frontiers. I used to like to travel in Germany; but no money could hire me to live there; too many things are strong verboten.

Let us establish institutions—for others. Not for me those "corridors and stairs of stone and iron, cold, naked, clean." I would, as Arthur Symonds puts it, "room in the sun and air with vagabonds, haunt the strange corners of cities, and know those useless, improper, and amusing people who alone are worth knowing."

BE UNDAUNTED

TEACH TO LEARN.

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE.

Education is not a one-sided affair. It is of benefit to the person who teaches as well as the children who are taught.

Indeed, it may be set down as a well established fact that often the teacher learns more from his pupils than they learn from him.

In proof whereof I need call attention only to the interesting circumstance that when a young man, having a business or professional career in view, temporarily takes up teaching as a means of livelihood he usually achieves distinct success in the business or profession in which he later engages.

Many men eminent as judges, lawyers, doctors, financiers, merchant kings, railway magnates, etc., began active life as teachers in some little red school house.

They were sufficiently qualified to teach. A teaching position offered them a way of earning sorely needed money. Therefore they taught.

By teaching they gained money enough to give them a start in the life work of their desire. But also they gained much more than that.

They gained uncommon wisdom in the tactful handling of other people. They gained uncommon insight into human nature.

They learned the full meaning of the word "responsibility." The spirit of initiative was of necessity strengthened or kindled in them.

If they formerly had been deficient in self-control, they now were forced to appreciate the importance of cultivating it. As teachers they had to maintain discipline among their pupils, and this they soon found could only be achieved through self-discipline.

Thus when they afterward set out to be lawyers or merchants or whatever else seemed best to them, they had already acquired from the little red school house personal qualities making for success in any calling.

Among your business and professional acquaintances you must know some one who for a time, taught school. Ask him what he gained from his period of teaching.

I am confident that you will find in his answer a verification of the statements made here.

And, accordingly, I do not hesitate to recommend that every young man, should his own school days are done, should whenever possible, take a hand in the business of teaching.

He need not become a regular teacher in a public school. Let him, if he prefer, teach in a night school or in a special class of his own forming. At least let him tutor one or more boys.

Teaching of some sort he may undertake, and will be wise to undertake.

It will help him make his way in the world. It will give him increased wisdom and greater strength of character.

It is believed that the steward of the first dining car in this country invented the "war portion." There probably was no war at the time, so the portion was not given its official belligerent title.

The people who travel should, by all means, assist the railroads in this enterprise of saving food. The railroads know how to do it. They go after the matter with organized efficiency. If the food must be saved, it might as well be saved right.

We know that the railroads are capable of carrying this plan to its highest point of success. It is figured that one dining car alone can save more food than a dozen city restaurants working at capacity and the restaurants are able food savers, too.

"HETTY"

THE TEMPTER LEADS HETTY UP THE MOUNTAIN OF VANITY AND DEBT.

BEGIN HERE.

Hetty Anderson, 22, comes from Rogers and lives in a cheap boarding house on Franklin street, securing work at the Bethlehem Machinery company, of which father is president and Duham manager. Hetty makes the acquaintance of Billy Matthews, a man of some means, and very attractive to women. After a brief courtship he offers to marry her, but she refuses, and he pursues her, until all ends in a stormy interview at Cameron park. Her work at the office is proving satisfactory, but there is bad blood between Jackson, salesman, and Baker and Duham. Walter Barton, a whole-some young man of the society set, comes to see Hetty. She consents, the Hetty to take part in amateur theatricals at the Country club. She consents, the play being "Midsummer Night's Dream," in which Hetty has played previously in her home town. She is received coldly, but determines to see it through. Jim Barnes, a country lover, comes to town and tries to force Hetty to marry him, showing a license already made out. She tears it up and sends him away. Through jealousy of Duham's wife, Hetty works late on the night of the first rehearsal, but is assisted by Walter Barton, and gets to rehearsal before it is over.

acquaintance on a platonic basis is begun in Walter Barton's runabout after rehearsal.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"I see. Then we will have to use the popular parlor—the moving picture houses and a little later on we can see some good things at the Auditorium. Say," he exclaimed as if a sudden thought had come to him, "do you like vaudeville?"

"I'm sorry, but I don't. I'd rather see a good movie any time."

"Fine! So would I. I'll know where to take you, then. Say, Miss Anderson, he hesitated over the name; 'Hank it all, that sounds so high and mighty. Can't I call you Hetty?'"

I remembered the charming ease with which Billy had dropped into the use of my name or had called me "little brown squirrel." I sighed with pleasure.

"You may call me Hetty if you like, but I hate the name. As soon as I was old enough to make damaging comparisons I began to reproach mother for giving me that name. She said that she had been hounded by relatives who wanted her to call me after them. Among the lot were a Lizzie, a Polly, a Sarah and a Joan. Mother was young and had her heart set on Elaine of Edythia, but papa wouldn't let her have her choice."

"I had a sour old maid aunt who would have died before she would have asked a favor, but mother could see that she would be tickled to death if I were named for her. So in a fit of desperation, badgered by papa and other female relatives she named me Hetty Susanna, the full name of the old maid aunt."

"And ever since I have been burdened with the unepithetous cognomen. If they had only called me Susanna."

"Say, you're a funny little kid," he chuckled. "Hetty just suits you somehow. I never heard it before, and there are skads of Susies and Elaines and Edythas. I like your name—Hetty."

It must have been 12 o'clock when the chummy little road, deposited me at the boarding house and a clear-voiced "Good night. See you tomorrow evening and the movies it shall be" sent me up stairs, my feet treading air.

So different was my feeling for the nice boy, that I did not ask myself into what I was drifting, as I had after stormy scenes with Billy Matthews. I pilloved my head on my arms that night, planning a few new clothes for my next experiences. I hadn't the courage to appear again in the skirt and waist, so recently purchased, even if they were as pretty and new as ever.

"You can't look dowdy, Hetty Anderson, and anything else beside the skirt and waist looks like the feminine version of Jim Barnes' new suit. Something pretty for afternoons or evenings, not fussy, but having the unmistakable sign of class."

"That's your cue, Hetty, my love. I should say a taffeta dress, not extreme in style and done that will last indefinitely, costing about—"

I sat up suddenly in bed, dismay clutching me like a cold hand. I had no money! And my check would not be due for a week. I flopped down again and was ready to weep all over my pillow when an insidious voice began to whisper, "Charge it!"

"But I have no account," I argued with the tempter.

"That's easy," the voice persisted. "It's always easy to get in debt."

"But mother would never let me charge anything. I have never owed anybody a cent in my life and mother never did, either. I have done without a coat all winter because there was not money enough. I guess I can do without a silk dress," I mocked at the tempter.

"You can't do it," the tiny voice persisted. "You have an engagement with one of the richest young men in town. What will he think if you appear for three times in succession in the same clothes. What will those girls at the Country Club think Thursday night if you rehearse in the same outfit?"

"If he doesn't like me as I am, he can leave me alone," I argued angrily.

"He will, too," taunted the voice of temptation.

"A dress and new felt hat would probably not cost more than fifteen dollars," I temporized.

"Surely not," the voice seized on the suggestion eagerly and there the duel raged and I slept uneasily, squirming once under the load of a million dollar debt all for clothes and hats.

NEGRO TROOPERS READY TO LEAVE

WISCONSIN TROOPS ASSUMING BURDEN OF GUARD DUTY AT VARIOUS SENTINEL LINES.

The street of Waco resembled those of a city many times this size last night, when troops from both the Wisconsin and Michigan guards came to the city.

During the first nights in camp the advance guards are being given passes to town and have been relieved of all duty. This is on account of the fact that they have had a tedious trip from their home stations and need relaxation.

Last night certain of the Wisconsin troops took up the work of guarding the water works and light plants at the camp. They will continue to do this guard duty, relieving soldiers of the Twenty-fourth U. S. Infantry. Tonight the Michigan men will be doing guard duty in their section of the camp and by Saturday the entire guard of the Twenty-fourth will have been relieved. Capt. C. F. Andrews, commanding the battalion of the Twenty-fourth stationed here, will report to headquarters tomorrow that he is ready to leave Camp MacArthur with his command.

For the American Woman

There was a sadness in Fannie's face her employers could not fathom. For five years—since she was twenty—she had been their bookkeeper. Through five years she had proven her efficiency, her faithfulness, her honesty. More she had shown her personal integrity, which held the respect of all. She was generous and charitable in her treatment of others. In her sweet consideration, gentleness, and kindness she was all tender woman. The younger girls in the office looked up to her as counselor and guide. Many a time she warned flippant Sarah or blundering Jennie against the pitfalls of the world, and when Annie's "man friend" wanted her to drink it was Fannie she confided in and who gave her motherly advice. Her employers looked on Fannie not only as an invaluable worker but as a good influence in their establishment.

Among the admirers that naturally gathered about a woman as sweet as Fannie finally came the man who won her love—the serious love of a mature woman. When they had known each other two years the man asked Fannie to marry him. She was happy, for about him she had begun to build her woman dreams—the home she hoped they might have together, the children that the mother in her longed for. She told him how much she cared, but that before she could promise to be his wife she had something to tell him.

Fannie told him that at sixteen through being tempted one day to drink, she made the greatest misstep of a girl's life. In fear she ran away from home lest her family find out. She got work. But, bitter and defiant because of the blame she felt attached to her, she fell in with loose companions and loose ways.

After six months she obtained a place at housework with a woman of high standing in the city, who found out her story and helped her. The woman led the girl out of her rebellious mood and made her see her duty to

U. S. LABORERS MAY GO ABROAD

SUCH IS INFORMATION RECEIVED IN TELEGRAMS FROM WASHINGTON.

That United States laborers will be sent to France in large numbers is indicated by telegrams just received from Washington.

Skilled workmen, especially are wanted by the War Department and it is indicated that craftsmen of all kinds will be sent from the United States to aid in the work abroad.

Major Matthew Hansen, construction quartermaster at Camp MacArthur has been requested by the War Department to canvass the crews working at the local camp and find what number are willing to enlist in the United States army as artisans.

The men willing to go abroad will probably be enlisted and then assigned to the class of work at which they now are employed. The messages from Washington indicate that a man must enlist in order to be taken abroad and that he will be used in the construction of army camps in France.

A wire from Deming states that more than 600 workmen at that camp are ready to enlist for construction service abroad.

A canvass of the men at Camp MacArthur is now being made and the report will be sent to Washington.

HALF HOUR'S JOB LIKE A DAY'S WORK

FOREMAN FOR FIDELITY CHEMICAL CO. HAS TAKEN A NEW LEASE ON LIFE SINCE TAKING TANLAC.

"Tanlac has simply given me a new lease on life," said O. A. Cook, who lives at Harrisburg, Texas, and is foreman for the Fidelity Chemical company, while in Kiesel's drug store, Houston, recently.

"Before I commenced taking it," he continued, "I was so run-down and miserable a half hour job would tire me as much as a whole day's work does now. My legs were weak and pained me, often suffered with backache and indigestion, and my nerves were so unstrung that I was irritable and out of sorts all the time. I would get up in the mornings feeling as tired and worn-out as if I hadn't gone to bed and my work was an actual punishment to me."

"I had reached the point where it was necessary for me to do something for myself and I bought Tanlac because I know how it helped my mother over in Georgia. I now sleep sound, eat hearty and can do a hard day's work without feeling it. My legs and back don't hurt me like they did and everything I have to do is a pleasure instead of a burden as it was before. I recommend Tanlac to everybody with those miserable, tired, nervous feelings like I had, for it certainly has straightened me out in fine shape."

Tanlac is sold in Waco by Morrison's Old Corner Drug Store under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative.—Adv.

The Girl's Job

CAN YOU CARPENTER?

By Jessie Roberts.

There used to be a good old joke that never wore threadbare about the woman and the hammer and the nail with the resulting catastrophe of smashed fingers and lost temper.

But now it seems likely that it will be quite an ordinary thing for a girl to reply, should you ask her what her work was, "Why, I'm a carpenter."

There are not many women carpenters in America yet, but there are some. With the new conditions we are facing there are likely to be more.

In England hundreds and hundreds of young women have volunteered to do carpenter work at the front. They are employed in putting up army huts. These huts are set up out of machine-made parts, but there has to be a thorough knowledge of carpentering used in putting them up. The girls who do the work get six weeks of instruction in England under a boss carpenter. Once at the front, each girl devotes herself to a particular part of the work, whether it be planing, joining, making cleats, hammering together the parts. The work goes thus from one to the other with the least loss of time and efficiency.

It is possible that we women in America will have our own call to turn to carpentering. War work does not only mean nursing these days. It means help in a hundred different directions. If you would rather be a carpenter than a stenographer you will probably get the chance.

SERVICE BANQUET
SATURDAY NIGHT
GROWS IN INTEREST

The "Recognition Service Banquet" set for Saturday night, as a mark of appreciation of the efforts of President J. M. Penland of the Chamber of Commerce, members of the military affairs committee of that organization and others who had to do prominently with the landing of Camp MacArthur, grows daily in plan of interest.

Committees were out Thursday selling tickets and met with great success. Each ticket purchased entitled the lady friend of the buyer to attend the Hippodrome Saturday night to see Douglas Fairbanks in "Down to Earth," and the ladies at 10 o'clock will then repair to the ball room of the Raleigh for the ball which is to follow the banquet. The entire affair is planned on an elaborate and imposing scale—something exceeding anything heretofore attempted in Waco.

There will be a number of outside visitors besides home guests, and the intention is to sell at least 350 tickets. General Chairman I. L. McGlasson felt encouraged yesterday at the success of the ticket sellers, and believes the number sold will easily reach the limit desired.

A publicity man for the banquet has been named in the person of W. T. Wheeler, and Mr. Wheeler is pushing the advertising of the unique event and also selling many tickets. The list of speakers, toastmaster and other details will be announced soon.

WANTED TO ERECT A TEMPORARY BUILDING

J. B. It was feared that this would create a fire hazard, and the request was not granted. The proposed building was of temporary character.

Bevo is a great favorite in the Army Canteens, where none but pure, soft drinks may be sold. After drill or march, you are sure to see a long line of hot and dusty-throated soldier boys making a bee-line for Bevo. They know that there lies complete satisfaction, full refreshment and pure wholesomeness.

At home or abroad—at work or play—between meals or with meals, you will appreciate what we have done for you in making this triumph in soft drinks.

You will find Bevo at inns, restaurants, groceries, department and drug stores, picnic grounds, baseball parks, soda fountains, dining cars, in the navy, at canteens, at mobilization camps and other places where refreshing beverages are sold.
